Accident Occurs During Target Practice on Coast

BULLETIN
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Toll of death in the gun explosion on board the U. S. S. Colorado was increased to five today when G. E. Swift, first class seaman, died on the hospital ship relief from his injuries.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 6.—Its upper decks scarred by the explosion of an anti-aircraft gun that killed four men and wounded nine others, the dreadnaught U. S. S. Colorado was moored at its dock today while naval officials sought to determine the cause of the blast. The explosion occurred during target practice off the Santa Barbara island in the Santa Barbara group off Los Angeles.

Immediately following the disaster, the Colorado, one of the most powerful dreadnaughts of the American fleet, headed at full speed for the harbor here, arriving in last night at 10 o'clock.

PUR IN HOSPITAL

As soon as the Colorado arrived in port the wounded men were transferred to a tug which carried them to the hospital ship, U. S. S. Relief where surgeons and nurses were waiting.

The dead are:

Lieut. Ralph Bradford, Jr. Pontiac Ill.

Lewis A. Clark, seaman, Los Gatos, Cal.

M. Hawkins, seaman, Hastings, Mich.

J. J. Schuur, seaman, St. Louis.

Four of the injured may die, physicians said. They are Lieut. Winston I. Quattlebaum, Ensign John D. Huntley, Seaman R. O. Duff and seaman G. E. Swift.

Other seriously injured include: Seaman H. J. Hinton, J. R. Kowalski, G. V. Stover, H. E. Lutz and W. H. Duval.

The explosion occurred when the officers and men, with a group of observers about them, were preparing a 5-inch anti-aircraft gun for a shot at a floating target above, which was attached to a bombing plane.

FUSE FOUL

According to reports a time fuse on one of the shells became fouled as the shell was being placed in the breach of the gun, causing the explosion.

Flying pieces of shell and parts of the gun tore into the side and deck of the huge dreadnaught after moving the crew down.

Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle forces, was aboard the U. S. S. Maryland to observe the target practice. The Maryland was nearby when the accident occurred on the Colorado.

LEBANON, Ind., Nov. 6.—A jury which deadlocked over the fate of Mrs. Carrie Simmons, charged with poisoning her 10-year-old daughter, Alice Jean, was discharged Thursday night. The jury had been out nearly 48 hours.

Judge John W. Hornady called the jurors into the courtroom at 6 p. m., and inquired if they had reached an agreement. When he received the answer that they had not, he asked if it was impossible for them to reach a verdict, and the foreman, O. L. Brown, replied it was impossible. The dismissal was announced at 6:25 p. m.

OUT 48 HOURS

The case was given to the jury at 6:45 p. m. Tuesday after a trial which started Sept. 28. The state contended that Mrs. Simmons, 47, wife of a farmer, had inserted poison-filled capsules into pressed chicken sandwiches which she had prepared for a family dinner on June 21.

Alice Jean and her sister, Virginia, 14, ate the sandwiches and died. Several other persons were made seriously ill.

The jury took nine ballots during its deliberations, which lasted only 20 minutes of being 48 hours. The vote on the final ballot stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. The vote on the first ballot was nine for acquittal and three for conviction.

BACK TO JAIL

The defendant was taken into the courtroom when the jury fled in. After the jurors were discharged she was returned to the county jail.

Mrs. Simmons is under indictment in Virginia's death by state's attorneys who want to try her first on the charge of causing the death of the younger child.

This trio was arrested in an investigation of a number of cottage thefts in this county. They were convicted of breaking into and robbing the summer home of Mai and Harry S. Daugherty on Deer Creek in Monroe-twp.

The conviction was carried to the state court of appeals and to the Ohio supreme court before Paul Herbert and D. C. Alby, defense attorney, admitted defeat. Emmitt L. Crist, prosecutor, and C. A. Leist, represented the state in the case.

He was arrested by Officer Fred Fitzpatrick and when searched the articles were found.

Whether or not a charge will be placed against the man is not known. He is being held in the city hall awaiting disposition of the case.

BLEVINS WAS HELD AND THEN RELEASED

Green Blevins, 32, of Mt. Sterling, was released from the county jail Thursday after being held for investigation. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell when he went to the county jail to see his wife who is being held for breaking into a residence.

Blevins was reported to have escaped Portsmouth city jail a year ago but when Portsmouth police didn't want him because the case was minor one he was released. A car, mortgaged and moved without consent of the owners, was confiscated. A large number of tools were also found at the home.

Above is Mrs. Carrie Simmons, 47, wife of an Indiana farmer, who is charged with murdering two daughters, one of them, Alice Jean, is shown with her mother. The other was Virginia, 14. A jury, deliberating nearly 48 hours, disagreed in the case and were dismissed.

Sam Simons, proprietor of the restaurant, stated that the money had been placed in the safe last night as a reserve to be used for cashing the workers checks. He told police that an attempt had been made two weeks ago to steal a similar amount. The safe resisted the thugs' efforts at that time.

Entrance was gained through a back door and another door leading from the kitchen to the office was found battered in.

Britton Beaten In $50,000 Suit

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 6.—Losing the first skirmish when a federal court jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, attorney for Nan Britton, plaintiff in a $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk, of Marion, O., today prepared to continue the court fight.

A motion for a new trial of the suit was expected to be filed with Judge John M. Killits of the federal court here today. If this was denied, Miss Britton's lawyers stated they would appeal to the circuit court at Cincinnati, and carry the case to the United States supreme court if necessary.

OUT SHORT TIME

After hearing testimony in the trial for eight days, and a two-hour charge delivered by Judge Killits, the jury deliberated one hour and 15 minutes to reach its decision for the defendant. Only three ballots were taken. The vote stood at 10 for the defendant, one for the plaintiff and one blank on the first ballot, and 11 to one for the defendant on the second.

Attorney William F. Marsteller, who represented the plaintiff, objected to several statements made by Judge Killits in the latter's charge, and the court permitted nearly a dozen of the objections to stand.

Formed Judge Grant E. Mouser Sr., chief of the defense council, told the court he had no objections.

OUTCOME OF BOOKS

Charges that she had been libeled in the book "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which allegedly had been distributed by Klunk, were contained in the petition filed by Miss Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," which was published four years after the death of the late President Warren G. Harding.

Lower courts denied the injunction and he appealed to the Supreme Court.

OHIO MINERS HALT STRIKE

To Confer With Millfield Owners This Afternoon; 400 To Go To Work.

ATHENS, O., Nov. 6.—Four hundred employees of Millfield No. 6 who went on strike nearly two weeks ago have agreed to end their strike and return to work, it was learned here today.

Their about-face policy was decided upon at a mass meeting held last night in company with union officials and state authorities and will be presented to officials of the Sunday Creek Coal company which owns the mine at a meeting in Columbus this afternoon.

The walkout was staged when the miners disagreed with company officials over the question of which shift one man should work, it was said.

Retreating from the previous stand the miners said they would consent to the mine owners ordering a change in shifts.

They also agreed, it was said, "not to strike again until first discussing their action with union officials."

U. S. STEAMER IS AGROUND

Lifeboats and Tugs Rushed to Aid of 'Hybert' Off English Coast.

DEAL, England, Nov. 6.—Lifeboats and tugs were rushed today to the assistance of the United States shipping board steamer Hybert, which went aground on Goodwin sands and was reported in a dangerous position.

The vessel was close inshore, looming mountain-like through a grey mist. The sea was calm, and it was believed that part of the cargo was being thrown overboard in an effort to get the ship refloated.

The Hybert is a freighter of 6,500 tons, built for the United States shipping board in 1920.

Shipping board officials in London said they doubted if any passengers were aboard the ship, which was bound for Rotterdam and Amsterdam with a general cargo.

The Hybert grounded at 7:30 a. m., apparently missing its correct course in the fog which shrouded the narrowest part of the English channel.

Marine experts here were of the opinion that the ship could not be refloated even at high tide tonight, as it went aground at a high water period this morning.

EUROPE PREPARED FOR WAR, WHEELER

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—"Europe today is an armed camp 15 years after the war to end war. In my judgment war would break out if some of the nations in Europe felt they could finance it."

United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana made these assertions today on his return from Europe aboard the liner President Roosevelt.

Discussing the political situation in this country, Senator Wheeler said he regarded Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as the strongest presidential candidate of the Democratic party for 1932.

TEXAN, LEADER OF G. O. P., DIES; LOSS TO PARTY

Harry M. Wurzbach Taken in San Antonio; Democrat Lead Certain

WAS STRONG LEADER

Only Republican In Congress From Texas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Democratic dominance of the House of Representatives today appeared more certain as a result of the death of Rep. Harry M. Wurzbach (R.) of Texas, in San Antonio.

With his death the Democrats had 217 members of the house which convenes Dec. 7, to 214 Republicans. One Farmer-Laborite and three vacancies.

Doubt was expressed here that the Wurzbach vacancy can be filled before Congress convenes. Democratic leaders telegraphed the Attorney General of Texas for an interpretation of the election laws.

Since all house vacancies must be filled by election, it is expected that a special election will be called immediately after the funeral, but thirty days must elapse before the election, according to Texas members of Congress, and ten days more may be required to tabulate the returns.

WAS POPULAR

The Democrats believe they can elect a successor to Wurzbach. He was the only Republican congressman from Texas, and was said to have retained his seat largely through personal popularity.

For many years the Democrats made a desperate effort to oust Wurzbach. He was defeated on the face of the returns in the last election, but won the seat in a contest in which the recount favored him.

He was indicted for alleged frauds in the primary, but the indictment was held invalid by the supreme court.

As the lone Republican in Congress from Texas, Wurzbach waged a battle with Ralph Crenshaw, Republican incumbent of the Lone Star state, for patronage control.

He had been elected to the house six times. He was the third

WINTER VEGETABLES IN LOW COST MEALS

The time has come, in many parts of the country, to give thought to winter vegetables. Nutritionists of the Bureau of Home Economics particularly emphasize one bit of advice to families with slender pocketbooks: "The fewer kinds of food in the diet, the more important is it that some of them should be vegetables."

Vegetables, then, must be included in the low cost food supply if it is to be adequate. Then what have we this week? Fortunately, some of the best winter vegetables are among the cheapest kinds reported in current price lists. Potatoes, sweet potatoes, carrots, onions, and cabbage are first on the list because they provide exceptional food value at low cost. Then there are parsnips, beets, kohlrabi and winter squashes and pumpkins, with canned tomatoes, kale, spinach, and sauerkraut to give the tang that tickles the palate and adds more minerals and vitamins. There are, also just now, the half-dried beans and peas that sometimes appear in market, vines and all. There are, in any case, dried beans, and dried peas, which are so very useful, as well as appetizing, because of their minerals and proteins.

A medium-sized potato, baked or boiled, has a fuel value of about 100 calories. It has also some protein or muscle-building value, some iron, and some vitamin C, all of which are important because we eat potatoes in quantity. To retain their food value, however, vegetables must be cooked right. The way to keep the vitamin C and the iron in the potato is to bake or boil it in the skin.

Next to the potato, the carrot probably is the cheapest and most important underground vegetable. Carrots are rich in iron; they are unusually rich in vitamins; and many people like them better raw than cooked, which is a sure way to get all the fine food values that is in them. Raw carrots will add, if you like, a cheap salad course to a meal. A strip of raw carrot makes a tasty relish. Carrots cut small, boiled, and buttered, are easy to prepare. Carrots fried with apples make a good combination, and apples, too, are cheap and fall. Mashed carrots are an agreeable variation, the bureau specialists suggest. To prepare: wash carrots, they say, steam them or cook them in a small amount of boiling salted water until tender, press through a colander or potato ricer, and season with salt, pepper, and butter.

Onions and turnips claim attention as winter vegetables not only because they are cheap but because they furnish variety and flavor along with exceptional food value. Raw onions, say the food chemists, contribute some vitamin C, which is important in the winter diet. Onions baked in tomato sauce combine two cheap and important vegetable foods.

Cabbage, according to the recipe expert, is surprisingly sweet and delicate if simmered in milk for 3 minutes, then thickened slightly with blended flour and butter and salt. Or cabbage may be scalloped with apples according to the recipe given today. Or, again, shredded cabbage may be cooked with spaghetti and cheese with buttered bread crumbs over the top, and baked until the crumbs are golden brown—making a good one-dish meal for a winter day.

This week's Market Basket shopping list is for a family of seven, two adults and five children, aged 2, 3, 8, 12 and 15 years. The menu suggested, however, should be modified for the youngest child—giving him, say, an egg and a potato baked in the skin, instead of spareribs baked with sweet potatoes around them, which may be too rich a dish for the young child.

Some of the recipes for this week's menu, together with many other recipes, are in "Aunt Sam's Radio Recipes Revised," or in "Food for Children," Farmers' Bulletin 1674-F, both issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Copies of these publications can be obtained free of charge on request to the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

RECIPES

Spareribs Baked With Sweet Potatoes

2 sections of spareribs.

Salt

Pepper.

Flour.
5 or 6 sweet potatoes.
Select well-fleshed ribs, and have the breastbone cracked so that it will be easy to carve between the ribs. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle the spareribs lightly with salt, pepper, and flour. Wash and pare the sweet potatoes and cut them in half lengthwise. Sprinkle with salt. Place the spareribs in a roasting pan without water and lay the halves of sweet potatoes around them. Cover and bake for about an hour, or until the meat is tender and the potatoes cooked through. Then remove the lid and continue baking for 15 to 20 minutes to brown.

Mashed Turnips

Pare the turnips. Steam or cook in salted water in an uncovered kettle for about 20 minutes, or until tender. Drain and dry, then press through a colander, season with cream or butter, and more salt if needed. Serve at once with a sprinkling of paprika over the top.

Fried Carrots and Apples

6 medium-sized carrots.
6 tart apples.
2 tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt.

Scrape the carrots and cut them lengthwise into thin slices. Pare the apples or leave the skin on, as preferred, core, and cut into slices about a fourth of an inch thick. Place a single layer of the apples and the carrots in a large skillet with the fat, cover tightly, and cook until well browned, turn, and brown the other side. Just before the cooking is finished, sprinkle with the sugar and salt. Serve on a hot platter, first a layer of carrots, then a layer of apples, so the two can be lifted together.

Creamed Mixed Vegetables

1 cup diced potatoes.
1 cup diced carrots.
1-2 cup chopped onion.
1 cup diced turnips.
2 cups finely chopped cabbage.
2 tablespoons melted butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
1-2 teaspoons salt.

1 cup milk.
Cook the potatoes, carrots, onions, and turnips in three cups of boiling water until almost tender. Add the cabbage, allowing about five minutes for cooking. Prepare a sauce of the melted butter, flour, salt, and milk. Cook until thickened and stir this sauce into the vegetables. Cook a few minutes longer, until the desired consistency is reached, and then serve.

Scalloped Cabbage and Apples

2 quarts shredded cabbage.
1 quart tart sliced apples.
2 teaspoons salt.
1 teaspoon sugar.
2 to 4 tablespoons butter or other fat.

1 cup buttered bread crumbs.
In a greased baking dish place alternate layers of the cabbage and apples, seasoning each with salt and fat and sprinkling the sugar on the apples. Over the last layer spread the butter crumbs. Cover, and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes, or until the cabbage and apples are tender. Toward the last remove the cover so the crumbs can brown. Serve in the baking dish.

Stuffed Onions

5 large mild onions.
3 tablespoons butter or other fat.
1-2 cup chopped celery.
2 tablespoons chopped parsley.
2 cups bread crumbs.
1 teaspoon salt.

Pepper.
Skin the onions, cut in half crosswise, simmer in salted water until almost tender, and drain. Remove the centers without disturbing the outer layers and chop fine. Melt 2 tablespoons of the fat in a frying pan, add the chopped onion, celery, parsley, and cook for a few minutes. Push the vegetables to one side, melt the remaining fat and add to it the bread crumbs, salt, and pepper. Then combine with the vegetables. Fill the onion shells with the stuffing, cover, and bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes, or until the onions are tender. Remove the cover from the baking dish during the last of the cooking so the onions will brown on top.

Gingerbread

1-3 cup fat.
1 cup molasses.
1 cup sugar.
1 egg
3 cups sifted soft-wheat flour.
1-2 teaspoon soda
4 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger.
1-2 teaspoon cloves
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup milk.

Cream together the sugar and fat, add the molasses and beaten egg. Sift the dry ingredients together twice and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in two shallow pans in a moderate oven (350°F) for 30 to 40 minutes.

One cup of sour milk may be used instead of the sweet milk. In that case, use 1 scant teaspoon of soda in place of the one-half teaspoon now called for, and use only 2 teaspoons baking powder.

WOMAN IN CHEMISTRY

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The oft-heard plaint that there is discrimination against women in fields of chemistry is described as "too much fussing" by Dr. Mary Violette Dwyer, associate professor of chemistry at the University of Missouri. "Women are inclined to emphasize too much the fact that they are women," she says. "If they would forget this fact while in business they would progress more rapidly. I teach my students, both boys and girls, the same principles of chemistry. It is true that a greater number of men like mathematical sciences, but I have found that when a woman goes into the field of chemistry she is usually excellent."

May Decide House

Rep. Paul J. Kvale (above), Farmer-Laborite of Minnesota, may hold the balance of power in the House of Representatives when Congress convenes. Now the Democrats have 217 seats, the G. O. 215, the Farmer-Labor 1. If Kvale votes with the Democrats they can organize the House and gain control. If Kvale votes Republican, they will have 216 seats. The G. O. P. expects one more seat from New Jersey, bringing its total to 217—deadlocking with the Democrats.

Children

THE American author, Sherwood Anderson, and the British philosopher, Bertrand Russell, have been debating that profound question, "Shall the State Rear Our Children?" Both advanced a lot of interesting arguments, both were very convincing at times, but the sum total of their combined forensic efforts amounted to nothing as far as deciding anything.

The philosopher thinks parents have made such a mess of their job they deserve to lose it. The author, admitting the incompetency of many parents, prefers the child as it is to standardized children modeled by the state from a single pattern. He resents the application of "extreme logical abstractions" to the management of men and women and their private affairs.

Most parents are honest enough to admit that their child-rearing methods are highly deficient and that the product of these methods often is a defective person. But when it comes to the question of whether or not the state should take over the rearing of children, they are almost unanimously opposed.

Back of most of this talk of substituting the state for the parent is a parental desire to shirk a heavy responsibility and that mysterious instinct to mold all minds and lives in one pattern. And these who advocate state child-rearing want to cut the pattern.

Navy Row

BACK of President Hoover's decision to open the naval policy to the administration to an investigation by a committee is his determination that this policy shall neither be misunderstood nor misinterpreted.

He is not afraid of the findings of such an inquiry, because no armament treaties have been violated and American people have repeatedly approved of both the naval policy and of the manner in which it has been administered under Mr. Hoover. He can order an investigation with a clear conscience.

The United States is rightfully committed to the policy of naval parity with the strongest sea power. It had this policy applied to capital ship and has consistently sought to have it applied to all combatant vessels. This policy is entirely consistent with the nation's policy of disarmament of armament reduction, treaty being an opening wedge.

Under the treaties and policies concerning naval parity the government at Washington is not bound to keep the naval strength up to that of the strongest sea power. Nor has it striven to do so. The rate of building toward parity is naturally conditioned at any particular time by various factors including the general international situation, budget limitations and the salutary effect upon world politics and armaments of staying far below parity in a single.

If the head of the Navy League started an army when he criticized the administration's naval policy it was a poor beginning.

The Philippines

ON the question of Philippine independence Washington and Manila at last seem to talk the same language. They are reaching an agreement that never in the past.

President Hoover favors political independence for the islands as soon as they attain economic independence. He feels that the islands are merely a matter of time.

Leading officials with the Philippine government have been making a study of the situation. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence.

And the Philippine government is now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence. They are now in a position to make a decision on the question of independence.

The CZARINA'S RUBIES

by Sidney Warwick

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST
In a time of ancient glory the rubies belonged to a czarina. They were great and glowing and red—red as blood, and through generations blood had been shed for them. Last to die was their owner, Prince Murinov, who defied a revolutionary mob while his servant, Fedoroff, escaped from the burning castle and hid them in a cave.

Ten years have passed. Fedoroff returns and recovers the gems. With him is Frank Severn, who represents Prince Murinov's granddaughter, to whom the rubies now rightfully belong. Fedoroff undertakes to smuggle them out of Russia. He disappears and Severn secretly returns to his lonely country home in England, Beggar's Court. He urgently summons his friend, Jim Wynter, who meets Felix Sant, Severn's lawyer.

These two find Severn's house lighted but silent, with a watch-dog lying dead of poison in the hallway. In vain they call out, "Severn! Severn!"

NOW GO ON CHAPTER VI

"Why didn't Severn take me into his confidence the night we met, before this inexplicable thing happened?" broke out Sant with a helpless gesture. "Well, I suppose we've got to call in the police now. He pledged me to secrecy about his being here, but how can one keep it a secret in the face of this?"

"Almost across his words Jim Wynter's voice broke startlingly, touched by a sudden, queer, excited note."

"Sant—Sant! Look!"

In one corner of this room where they had found the overturned chair was a long old-fashioned wall-mirror that reached almost to the floor. Wynter was pointing at something his eyes had just caught there, half hidden behind an article of furniture, on the lower part of the mirror. Quickly Sant crossed over to him, saw it too; some words faintly traced, as if by a finger tip, in the dust on the glass:

"S. O. S. For God's sake—"

For a startled moment the two men stared dumbly at the broken, poignant words—from Severn? But when they spoke—

INEXPLICABLE DRAMA
It was as if Severn had tried desperately to give his friends a message or a clue to the inexplicable drama that must have been played out tonight in this lonely mist-enclosed house, and had been prevented from finishing what he had endeavored to trace there. Something very dark and sinister behind that unfinished message!

With a white, unnerved face Sant strode to the telephone to ring up the police.

Sant and Wynter had meanwhile made a search of the outbuildings. The only discovery they made there was that the Beggar's Court motor car was no longer in the garage. In the house itself they made a discovery that might or might not have a bearing on the mystery.

Lying on the hearth in the room where Severn had been sitting was the torn half of a playing card—or rather, the "joker" of the pack. There was one penciled word on it—not in Severn's handwriting—possibly one of other words forming a sentence written on the missing half of the card, their doubtless had been burnt. The one word was "silver."

The police from Trayne were put in possession of the facts. They, too, made an exhaustive search of the house, but with no results to throw any further light on this mystery.

About 10 o'clock a car was heard proceeding up the drive—a sound that drew Sant to the door, to peer out eagerly into the deepening mist. The three figures in the car, as it approached the radius of light through the open door, proved to be the servants of the establishment. The newcomers seemed startled at the sight of the police there.

"Martin," broke out Sant impatiently, "can you tell us anything about Mr. Severn?"

"I don't understand, sir," Martin looked surprised at the question. "Is anything the matter?"

"How is it that all three of you, the entire household staff, were out this evening?" demanded the police inspector.

"Because Mr. Severn gave us permission," retorted Martin, staring at the speaker, "as he'll tell you himself."

"Unfortunately, Mr. Severn is not here to tell us anything," said the inspector drily. "Mr. Sant and this gentleman came here tonight at half-past seven to find the house absolutely deserted, no sign of Mr. Severn."

"But we left him here," cried Mrs. Martin, her voice startled. "We'd arranged to go to the pictures with my sister at Trayne, and Mr. Severn said we needn't stay in just because he had a gentleman coming; that if we laid supper before we went out it would be all right—and that Greyke could drive us in the car."

"Why, of course," Mrs. Martin cried in surprise—"or we shouldn't have gone."

Evidently there was nothing to be learned from the servants. They had motored off about six; there had been no sign of anything amiss then. Whatever it was that had happened at this lonely house must have occurred between that hour and half-past seven.

"Isn't it rather odd Mr. Severn should have left all the servants going out when he was expecting a guest?" said the inspector to Sant later.

"Perhaps so. Yet I don't know," said Sant thoughtfully. "Mr. Severn's always doing the unexpected thing—and he's good nature itself. I suppose he didn't want them to be disappointed."

"Quite trustworthy; so far as you know, these servants?"

"Quite, so far as I know," said Sant. "Martin and his wife were with the late Mr. Severn for years. Greyke, too, was here in his time."

Presently the police took their departure.

"There's nothing further we can do tonight, sir," the inspector said. "We seem to be up against a blank wall, and no mistake. We shall be here first thing in the morning. Shall we find you here?"

"Yes, I shall stay the night here."

Sant's round, humorous face looked anxious and worried. "I want to be on the spot should there be developments."

Wynter was remaining, too. Severn, in his letter, had asked him to stay the night.

"What's one to make of it?" broke out Sant, helplessly, as the police drove off. "It makes me afraid, remembering those other disappearances cases . . . weeks ago now—and to this day not a trace of any one of those three men. Vanished as utterly as a stone drops out of sight in deep water! And now poor Frank Severn a fourth!"

OUT OF THE NIGHT
It was long before sleep came that night to Jim Wynter, with his mind groping in the dark labyrinth of that troubling riddle.

What had happened in this lonely house between the hours of 6 and half-past 7?

Jim Wynter awoke with a start with that wild cry that had broken through his troubled dreams still echoing in his ears:

"Wynter—Wynter! Help!"

Like the voice of a man in desperate flight from overtaking enemies, screaming out in the last extremity of fear—and Frank Severn's voice!

Wynter started up in bed, his wondering even yet in that first confused moment if he had only imagined that strange cry, if it had not been just part of a vivid dream.

But not a dream! Solidly on the top of that vague doubt, out of the night's enfolding silence came that voice again, still far away in the mist-wrapped grounds beyond the window—a hoarse, half-muttered cry this time, that seemed to snap off abruptly like a frayed fiddle-string.

Frank Severn out there in the hands of those unknown enemies! With a start and thrill Wynter had sprung out of bed and dashed across to the window. The luminous dial of his watch told that it was a little more than an hour past midnight.

He flung open the window wide. Into the mist, faintly irradiated by moonlight, was like a spectral impalpable sea beating up against the panes, that muffled sound and hid away completely from his eyes the night's lurid secrets.

"Severn!" he cried out loudly—"Severn!"

There was no answering voice from out of the white, ghostly drift, no sound save the fitful gusts of rising wind that drowned the stirring of any stealthy movements in the grounds below, no clue to the heart of the muffled, mysterious silence.

In a fever of haste Wynter flung on some clothes and ran out of the room. Footsteps were already stirring in the room opposite where Sant slept; a knife-edge of light gleamed beneath the door. As Wynter raced out into the corridor the other door opened and Sant's white, startled face peered out. He caught at Wynter's arm.

"What is it?" he cried in a strained voice. "What has happened?"

In his impatient haste Wynter shook off the detaining hand.

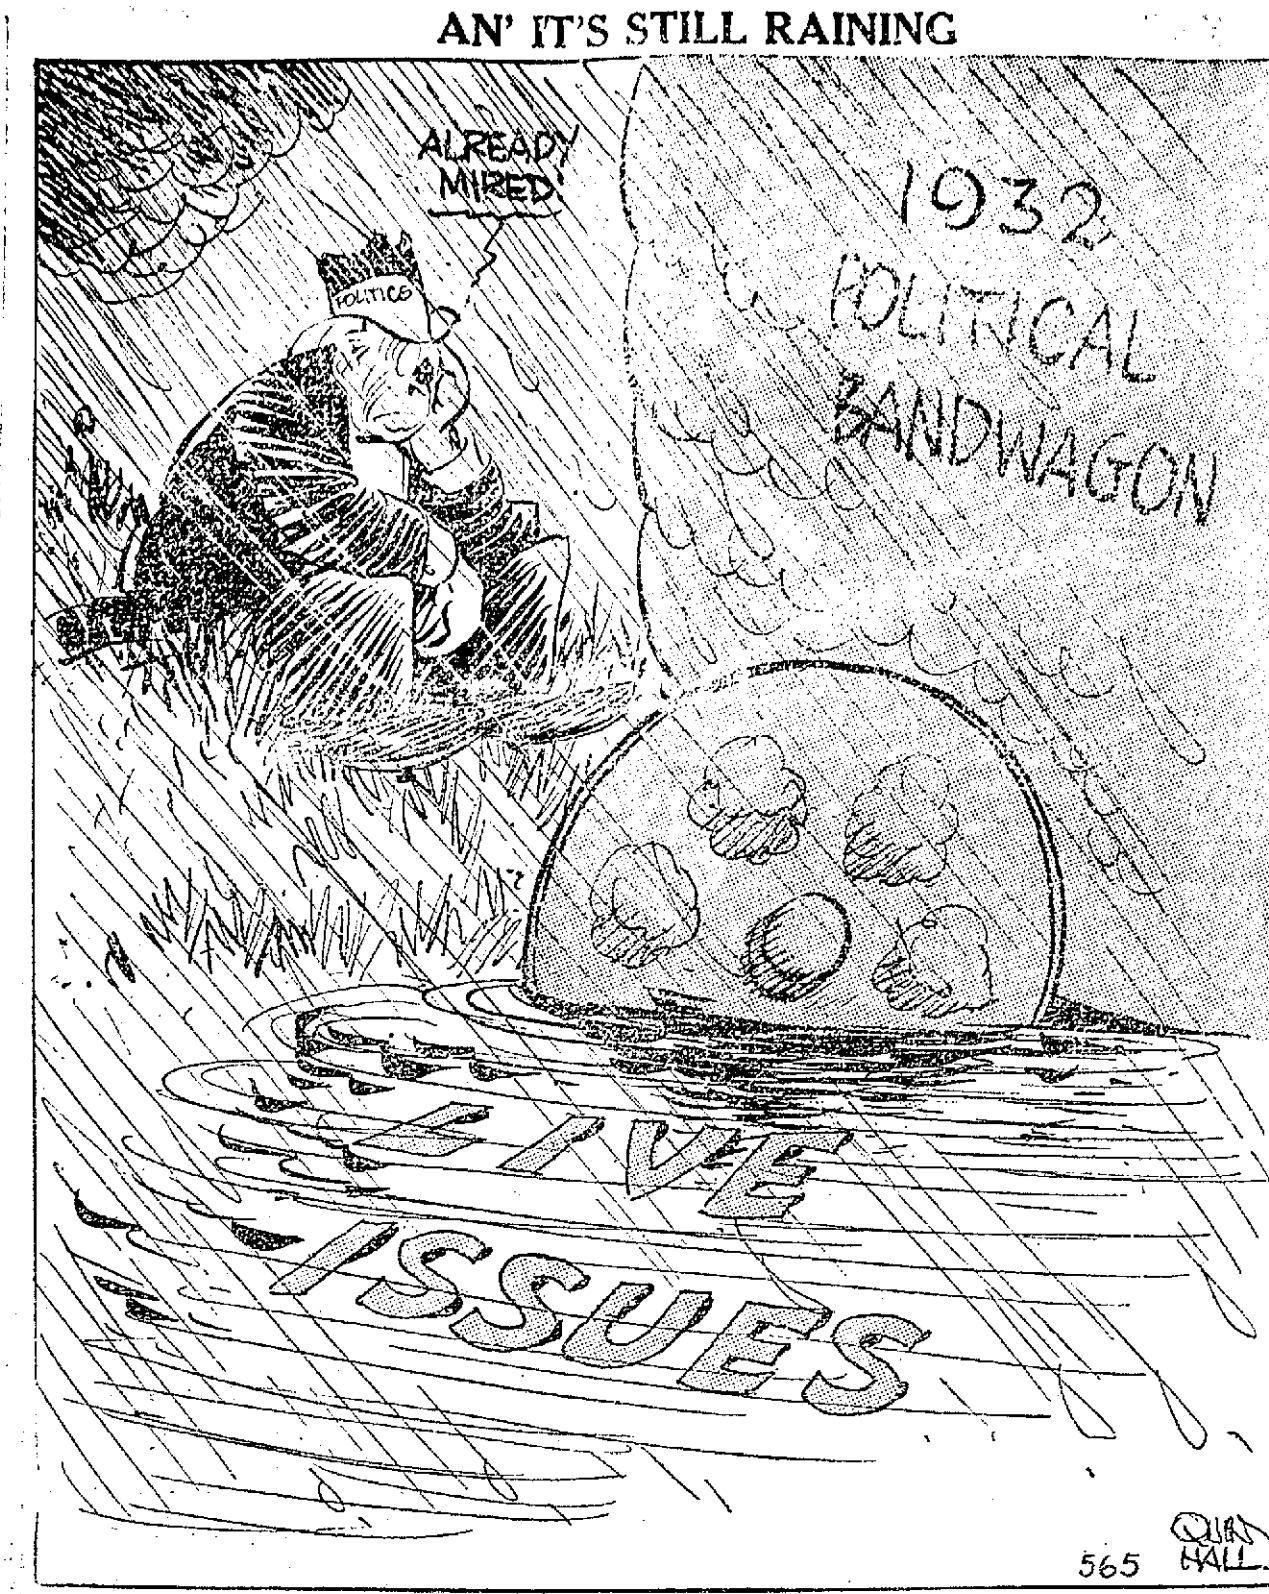

"Hurry into some clothes, Sant; rouse the servants, send them out there in the fog! I heard a cry for help just now. It's amazing, but he can never have been far from Beggar's Court from the time he vanished!"

The last words were slung over his shoulder as Wynter raced along the corridor. He took the stairs three at a time, ran across the hall to a side door that opened on to the garden. In feverish haste he dragged back the bolts, dashed out into the open.

No sound met him out of the stealthy hush of the surrounding mist except the dreary muttering of the rising night wind. The mist baffled his sense of direction. From which quarter had that desperate cry from Severn come? Severn, as he was convinced, in the hands of those unknown enemies? Strange to think that from the time of his disappearance last night the missing man, for all their search, could never have been far away from Beggar's Court a prisoner in some cunning hiding place, to make this strange night's mystery deeper still.

Out there in the fog he paused listening for some clue to guide him. Then suddenly, far away out of the mist-bound distance, he saw the sudden blurred gleam of a moving light as if from an electric torch. Instantly Wynter plunged forward in the direction of that will-o'-the-wisp gleam.

Formula for Modifying Milk for Baby's Needs

In This, the Fifth of the Series on Infant Feeding, Dr. Copeland Explains the Method of Making Cow's Milk Safe for the Baby

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN THIS series I have been attempting to explain to the young mother the problems involved in feeding her baby. As I have said on repeated occasions, the baby is much better off if it can be fed from the breast.

But of course breast feeding is not possible in every instance. The reason for this is that the mother's milk is to be preferred to an artificial food, because it is exactly suited to the needs of the human infant. Mother's milk is more dilute than the milk of the lower animals. It is peculiarly rich in fat, and fat of a remarkably fine globule. This makes it much more readily digested than the fat of cow's milk.

The percentage of sugar in mother's milk is higher, while it contains a smaller proportion of protein. Because of these differences between human milk and cow's milk, it is necessary to make certain modifications in order to fit the cow's milk to the digestive requirements of the infant. If it were attempted to feed the child with the unchanged, unmodified cow's milk, there would be digestive disorders at once. Loss of weight and general debility.

The first thing we must do to prepare the cow's milk for the baby's needs is to add water, to make it more dilute, more like human milk. But when we do this, we have lessened the proportions of fat and sugar. As a result, the calories, the heat-producing elements, are lacking.

To overcome this, the next step in modifying the milk is to add sugar and a certain amount of fat in the form of cream. Just exactly what these proportions shall be, depends upon the age of the baby. Let me give you an example. For an infant one month old, the feeding for twenty-four hours would be made up as follows:

Out of a total of 16 ounces there would be 3 ounces of cream from the top of the milk bottle, 2 ounces of skimmed milk, and 11 ounces of water. To this mixture would be added a little more than 2 table-spoonfuls of milk sugar. The resulting pint of prepared milk would have practically the same proportions of ingredients as an equal quantity of breast milk.

As the child grows older, the quantity of cream would be increased slightly. At the same time, the skimmed milk content would be increased, and the water materially decreased, until at six months of age not more than 5 ounces of water would be included in the 16-ounce mixture.

"Formula for the New-Born Baby." The first food given to the newborn babe would consist of 14 ounces of water, to which are added the other ingredients. They would be, one ounce of cream, one ounce of skimmed milk, and a little more than 2 level table-spoonfuls of milk sugar.

When larger quantities of food are required, the same proportions are maintained. It is the practice of some physicians to use barley water or some other cereal water after the baby has reached the age of four months. I share space of this sentiment.

In my next article, which will appear Thursday, it is my plan to speak somewhat in detail about how these mixtures are made, and the care which must be exercised in their preparation. Some advice will be given, too, regarding the total quantity of formula-milk to give in each twenty-four hours.

GOING AROUND in WASHINGTON

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Senator Tom Helms of Alabama, is fully convinced he will soon again echo the cries of the Capitol from the outside point of membership in the United States Senate.

Tom was defeated for re-election last year by John H. Bankhead, Birmingham lawyer and state Democratic leader. Tom charged corruption and fraud and was so persistent in his accusations that the Senate finally directed an investigation. The committee is now formulating its report, and Tom claims it will corroborate his charges.

Whatever the committee's report, the issue will go to the Senate floor for decision. The Senate is the sole judge of its membership and can unseat one claimant and give the place to another if a majority so decides. It did this several years ago in the case of Senator Brookhart.

The Governor of Iowa certified to the Senate that Brookhart had been elected. The count was very close. The Senate after almost two years of committee inquiry finally rejected Brookhart's claims and seated his Democratic opponent, Daniel F. Steck. Brookhart was not to be outdone, however. He promptly returned to Iowa, ran against Senator Albert B. Cummings, Republican floor leader, and defeated him. This time there could be no question about Brookhart's right to his seat and he is a member of the Senate today.

While waiting for the Senate to return him to its rolls Tom is earning "an honest living," as he explains it, by lecturing. His subject is "America at the Crossroads." The crisis as Tom sees it is the demon liquor traffic and the menace of Catholic encroachment. He declares that business for him is brisk and that the depression has had no effect upon either the zeal or numbers of his listeners.

His dress is as elaborate and novel as it ever was. A great black sombrero covers his massive head and a high white starched collar and stiff bosomed shirt cover his front. Around his middle is a large cream colored waistcoat with dangling mother-of-pearl buttons. In one pocket of this he carries a heavy gold watch with an almost fast sized bob pendant.

His trousers are striped and his shoes swankily boast of patent leather. Over all this outer attire he wears a dark-gray swallow tail coat of the old statesman variety, the tails running all the way round and straight up and down.

Bankhead having been certified by the state Governor is on the payroll of the Senate, although he has not been sworn in and will not be until Helms' contest against him is settled. Bankhead also has a Senator's suite in the Senate Office building. Tom had to give up his office rooms, but is allowed to have one chamber in which to conduct his fight against Bankhead. He does not, however, draw any pay. That stopped on March 4, last. His expenses in his contest will be recompensed by the Senate. This is the established custom in Congress.

As a former member Tom will have the privilege of the Senate floor and intends to take full advantage of that in carrying on his challenge of Bankhead. He can not, of course, speak in his own behalf, unless the Senate by suspension of the rules and by special motion should extend him the right. Tom won't say whether he will ask for that unusual privilege—but there are some Senators who say they don't doubt that he will do so.

But whether he does or not the Senate looks forward to a battle royal. Tom may be victorious, but he is persistent as the Senate will readily certify. And there are some Senators who say it would be worth establishing a new precedent by allowing Tom to take the floor just to hear his speech.

BURIED KIN; CHEATED FIRE
MISSOULA, Mont. — The life of the forest ranger is full of hard work, careful observation and quick action. A report recently made by Evan W. Kelley, regional forester, shows that there were 1,537 fires, or an average of 21 each day during the season. Careless tourists, lightning, incendiaries—unauthorized burning of brush, railroads, logging operations and unknown causes were blamed for most of the fires. During a three-day fire in the Freeman lake region of the Kanab national forest more than 100 families, totaling more than 300 persons, were made homeless. Edward Bailey buried his wife and two children in a potato patch, covering them with earth and wet sacks. Next morning he dug them out, none the worse for their experience.

Theaters

Alexander Hamilton, and other aristocrats of his day, outshone Beau Brummel in the satins, laces, powdered wigs and shining buckles, that cut such a figure in the minut and in the graver councils of war, finance and government. Others who appear in "Alexander Hamilton," the Warner Bros. production starring George Arliss now at the Grand Theatre are Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Chief Justice John Jay, Count Tallmadge, and General Philip Schuyler, as well as the gorgeously gowned ladies of the day, Martha Washington, Betty Hamilton, and the amazing Mrs. Reynolds, about whose affair with Hamilton the thrilling drama is woven.

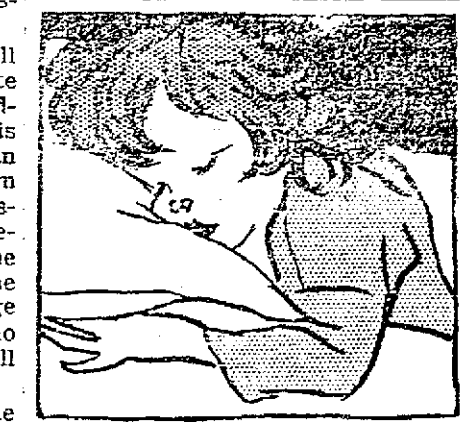

Featured in support of Mr. Arliss are Doris Kenyon, Dudley Digges, Alar Mawbray, Rolfe Harpole, June Collyer, Charles Middleton, Montague Love, Lionel Belmore, Morgan Wallace, Gwendolin Logan, John T. Murray, Charles Evans, John Larkin, Evelyn Hall, Russell Simpson and James Durkin. John Adolfi directed.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Richard Arlen adds to his ever-growing fame as a portrayal of Western classic roles in "Caught," the Paramount talkie of life in the mining "boom" towns of the 80's which comes to the Cliftona Theatre, Saturday.

This popular star, who was seen as the secret service agent in "The Conquering Horde," as "Steve" in "The Virginian" and as the mustang-hunter in "Gun Smoke," here plays the part of Lieut. Colton, the leader of a detachment of cavalry which is sent to the outlaw country to preserve order. At the outset they run into difficulty with a gang of rustlers who are led by one of the most desperate women of that day—"Calamity." Gun-toting, stogie-smoking and more ruthless than any of the killers in her gang, this female terror turns their way. She is proprietress of the leading dance and gambling hall.

COLLEGE STUDY: ECONOMY
CORVALLIS, Ore. — Now they go to college to learn economy. At Oregon State college fever and simpler parties and dances is the edict of fraternity, sorority and independent club leaders for this year. Sunday and dinner guest lists will be sliced to do away with expensive decorations and flowers. Expensive Christmas cards will go by the board between houses. Radios will supplant orchestras. Once 235 house dances were given—they will be lessened. Student dances, with 4,000 invited, will supplant private affairs and their duplicate costs. One group will suffer. They are the 75 students who earn all or part of their way through school by tooting, drumming, or fiddling.

The Chinese custom of stuffing duck with pin needles is said to give it a delicate flavor. Something like the ant flavor in lard is said to be a delicacy.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

—With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is uncomfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—not calomel. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Genuine Castoria always has the name:

"WHY?" IS QUESTION IN WHEAT PRICE UP

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—Since the wheat market started its sensational climb October 7, when the price was then at its lowest mark in 300 years, economists, and traders, and the general investing public have sought an answer to the question, "Why?"

An able economist attached to a brokerage firm of national reputation here sets forth impartial reasons and an analysis for the International News Service. He requested that his name be withheld, for business reasons.

The low mark in 300 years, of October 5 for various options in wheat compared with the close of yesterday shows these changes:

	Oct 5	Yesterday	Net Change
Dec. 44 3-8	64 3-8-1-2	20
March 47 1-4	68 1-8-1-4	20 7-8
May 48 3-4	69 3-8-5-8	20 5-8
July 49 5-8	70-70 1-4	20 3-8

Facing these changes to the upswing, professional traders and brokers who have been on the "short" side of the market are now going "long." They have reviewed world production and crop forecasts and found their surveys favorable to "buy."

The entire world position on wheat reaches into the money the farmer in Iowa, as in Montana will have in his pocket at the end of the year or to meet his credit it develops in this manner.

ENGLAND CAUSE

When England suddenly reached the position in world trade where she had to lose her gold standard, she likewise had to buy wheat. She had to buy from the North American continent. She feared a tariff under protective measures following the general elections. That led to English participation in the market with a falling gold supply. The United States and France with excess gold reserve and some wheat in France's case offered markets. The United States had a surplus for domestic needs and for export for milling purposes. But no buyers. Suddenly England entered the market.

England had to turn to the United States for this reason—Argentina has poor crops spoiled by rain and indications point to less favorable market conditions for this year. Australia is in a normal condition; continental Europe is spotty; Russia, where some doubt exists is certain however to be on the minus side. Central Europe might be termed as favorable. Italy, food, and France fair to good. These conditions apply to moisture as well as crops, based on the judgment of the crop in the ground.

FIGURES GIVEN

So far as general figures present themselves there are none which would determine an agricultural value. The world supply of wheat is stronger than a year ago, but the 1931 crop falls short about 250,000,000 bushels from the previous year the world over.

This means the surplus is decreased to this extent.

In this country and in Canada there is an invisible and unknown decrease caused by the feeding of wheat, and what this totals no one knows, in bushels. The United States estimate is about 150,000,000 bushels and this may be too small. Therefore the sales of American grades of wheat could only cause an upswing in prices.

From the speculators standpoint, for instance, Kansas has had four large wheat crops in succession, and the betting would be that she would not have a fifth, due to weather, soil and moisture conditions.

It is said Russia has moved out her surplus, and her shipments to date are double a year ago. Argentine qualities are poor, not being standard milling grades. England has been buying Manitoba's and hard winters for this reason, and most of this in the past 20 days because of the feared anticipation of a duty on wheat.

Ultimately the question resolves itself thus. That throughout the United States, the buying wave of wheat will cause a rise in all other grains and commodities generally. The general buying public having been smitten in the stock and bond markets are turning to wheat with a confidence not found since the stock market crash.

"I liked Chesterfield right from the start"

"NO, I don't know a blessed thing about how cigarettes are made. But, of course, I would want the tobacco to be PURE. And then I've heard that the blending is very important. I'd want that to be done just right."

"Then the paper. I don't like paper that you can taste—or smell when it's burning. I'd want that pure too."

"Another thing. I want to smoke whenever I feel like it—without worrying about smoking too many. So I want my cigarettes MILD."

"But the main thing, of course, is TASTE. I don't care for over-sweetened cigarettes. I much prefer those that are just sweet enough."

"Chesterfield seems to satisfy in every one of these ways. That is why I'd rather have a Chesterfield."

SMOKERS the finest sweetness in cigarette making. The process for Chesterfield cigarettes is like no other. The tobacco is carefully selected and blended to give the cigarette a pure, mild taste. Fesler Praises Navy's Gridders

BY WESLEY FESLER
International News Service Sports
Writer.
(Written Expressly for International News Service and The Herald.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—Saturday Homecoming Day, will bring to Ohio State the Navy—a team of real gentlemen.

Last year's Navy game was one of the most enjoyable games in which I was lucky enough to take part.

Not once did I hear a Navy man say a hard word to one of our players, and believe me, that is something out of the ordinary.

All of them were good tough fellows, who would knock you down and then help you up.

Tough and hard as can be, they are different from the general type of opponent in that they are almost polite on the field.

We are all expecting the Buckeyes to put up one of the best games of the season against the Navy tomorrow for two reasons. First, because they are playing the Navy in the spotlight inter-sectional game of the season; and second, because they will be performing before the old grads.

Every young football aspirant has at some time or another in his early football experience dreamed of playing against an Army or Navy team. Most of the Buckeyes have been looking forward to this game, not only for a year, but for the bigger part of their lives.

A lot of people have remarked that they had never seen such an enthusiastic team on the field as the Buckeyes were at Navy last year, when we won 20 to 0. And why not? We were representing the Mid-west against the East, and the Big Ten against Eastern football, and to lose, for us, would have been a hard blow. So we entered that game with a spirit that could not be denied. And the result of that game showed plainly the effect of that old enthusiasm.

This, of course, is another year. Navy, smarting under last year's defeat, will be giving their best and fighting their hardest to overcome the Buckeyes and spoil Ohio's homecoming. Possessing a fast-charging line, speedy backs, and bolstered by a strong passing attack, Navy can and will make the going tough.

The Ohio boys are not fooled as to Navy's reported weaknesses and will enter the game carrying the same fight and spirit that has characterized the October games of the Bucks.

Every Ohio fan hopes that the Buckeyes can pick up where they left off and make this one of the best Ohio homecomings.

ODDS ON OHIO STATED 4 TO 1

Fried and Co. in New York
Announce Odds on Different Big Contests.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Although Georgia is unbeaten while New York University was tripped up by Oregon last week, the southern eleven is only a 6 to 5 favorite over the Violet for tomorrow's game here. N. Y. U. has been pointing for Georgia all season and is expected to be at top strength tomorrow.

Heaviest wagering here has been on this game and on the California-Washington and Bucknell-Georgetown contests. The California-Washington battle is regarded as a toss-up. Bucknell is a 6 to 5 choice over Georgetown.

Other odds were quoted today by J. S. Fried and Co., local betting commission, as follows:

Harvard 5 to 2 over Dartmouth.
Notre Dame 6 to 1 over Pennsylvania.
Northwestern 3 to 1 over Minnesota.
Southern California 3 to 1 over Stanford.

Alabama is a 4 to 1 choice over Florida and Ohio State is favored at the same odds to take Navy. Fordham has been installed a 3 to 1 choice over Detroit.

Pittsburgh is 4 to 1 over Carnegie Tech; Michigan 8 to 5 over Indiana, Illinois 5 to 2 over Wisconsin, and Nebraska 3 to 1 over Iowa.

OHIO GRID GOSSIP

By International News Service
DAYTON, O., Nov. 6.—When the Dayton Flyers travel to Cincinnati Saturday for the Governor's Cup game with Xavier University, Coach Harry Bauman will howl to superstition and give his men tan jerseys to wear, instead of the usual blue and gold outfits. "They were with us in our last two victories at Xavier, and they are good for at least one more," he said of the faded equipment.

BLUFFTON, Nov. 6.—Merwin Sully, field general with the Bluffton Beavers, is expected to be back in action for the Earlham tilt Saturday, with a leg injury received two weeks ago fully recovered. The Beavers will be spurred by the desire to avenge a 14 to 0 drubbing at the hands of Earlham last season.

NEW CONCORD, O., Nov. 6.—The Muskies' undefeated football eleven will be given the opportunity to push their string of victories to seven in their last home game of the season here Saturday. Muskingum will tangle with Wooster, and the Black and Magenta of the local squad is given the edge to chalk up another win.

ATHENS, O., Nov. 6.—Particular attention to the task of building up a strong pass defense will occupy the time of Ohio University's Bobcats until next Saturday when they tackle DePauw at Greencastle, Ind. Unhindered by injuries the Ohio U. squad will be called upon to keep its record in the Buckeye Conference clean although DePauw is not yet a full-fledged member of the league.

Interest is High in Several Games; Miami, Wittenberg Are Watched.

Traditional rivals will wage the principal battle on Ohio's college football program tomorrow when 20 games involving Ohio teams will be played—all but four of them on Ohio soil.

The "natural" of the week-end will be the Ohio State-Navy game at Columbus, where more than 55,000 fans are expected to gather to witness the Buckeyes' attempt to sink the Navy.

Next in interest will be the Miami-Wittenberg game at Oxford. The rivalry started "way back in 1934." Dayton will meet back in 1934. Dayton will meet back in 1934. Dayton will meet back in 1934.

Defiance, Ohio's only other undefeated, untied team, will travel to Detroit to play the City College team. Western Reserve, Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio university also will pack grips and travel.

The Reserve squad will play at Syracuse, and Ohio Wesleyan will go to Brown, at Providence, R. I. DePauw's colorful campus at Greencastle, Ind., will be the destination of the Ohio University Bobcats.

NOTICE OF HEARING FOR PAROLE
Chester A. Davis, No. 63101, a prisoner now confined in the London Prison Farm, London, admitted December 27, 1930, of the crime of burglary and larceny and serving a sentence of 1 to 15 years, is eligible before the BOARD OF PAROLE on or after December 1, 1931.

THE BOARD OF PAROLE, By W. C. THOMAS, Parole and Clerical Clerk. Nov. 6, 1931.

Wins Mississippi

Marion Sennett "Mike" Conner (above) evidently believes in the adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." And it won for him the Governorship of Mississippi in the election just held. His first two races for the honor netted him decisive defeats, but his third attempt was eminently successful. He will be inaugurated Jan. 19.

PREDICTS 500 MILE SPEED
ST. LOUIS. — Maj. Jimmy Doolittle, the famous flyer, believes airplanes will attain a speed of 500 miles per hour. The famous pilot made this prediction in commenting on the feat of Lieut. G. H. Stainforth of the British Air Service, who flew 381.1 miles per hour at Calshot, England. "There is no limit to speed in the air," Doolittle said. "If aviation progresses at the present rate, we may look forward to attaining air speeds of 500 miles an hour in the future. Speed will be increased as airplane design is improved, together with increases in power and decrease in weight of airplane engines."

EDISON AND BELL
STRATFORD, Ont. — Thomas A. Edison proved his first invention in Canada, is the claim here. Edison as a youth was a telegraph operator in Canada for the Grand Trunk Railway, and it was while so employed at Stratford that he perfected his first invention. It is an interesting coincidence that almost at the same time and only a few miles away at Brantford, Ontario, Alexander Graham Bell was developing the telephone over which the first conversation was held between Brantford and Paris, Ontario, on August 10, 1876.

make a circuit before landing. Whether the plane ignited before it tumbled to the ground had not been established today.

The gas tanks were ripped open as the craft fell, and the passengers, none of whom escaped death, were drenched with oil.

Several fire companies, summoned by witnesses of the crash, fought against the intense heat of the blazing wreck for an hour before they were able to approach it. By then, only the blackened framework of the plane remained. Usually, the plane, an express, would not have sought a landing at Central airport. But Ehle, one of the three passengers, had asked as a favor the landing be made so he could be home in time for dinner with his family.

Lucas went on the fatal trip through coincidence. He was supposed to pilot a later plane out of Newark, then report for a new job early today at the line's Washington airport.

FAMILY WAITED
Just before Cox took off, Lucas found a pilot off-duty had wandered onto the field. He readily agreed to take out the later plane, and Lucas obtained special permission from his superiors to "deadhead" it home in the plane that took him to his death.

Mrs. Ehle, with her two small children, was waiting at the field for her husband's arrival when the plane plunged to earth. Seeing the long tongues of flame shoot upward from the fallen plane, she became hysterical and faint.

Winning Friends

WHICH friend do you value more. The one who is a little reserved, or the one who wears his heart on his sleeve? If you are an average mortal, the friend who calls too frequently and presses small favors upon you and makes a frank display of his affection cheapens himself in your sight and becomes somewhat of a nuisance.

Here is a lesson for those who covert friends. They cannot be won by assault. Too much eagerness arouses in them a spirit of antagonism.

The explanation is simple and obvious.

In the junkie any form of antagonism contains a menace. Opposition threatens life. And Nature equips all of her creatures with an instinct that makes them turn in fury upon anything that threatens or hinders or opposes them.

When the world was young and every shadow contained a menace, man had need of this instinct also and Nature supplied it. He does not need it now, but still it remains a part of his nature. Still he blazes with instinctive antagonism whenever you try to co-

DR. C. C. BEALE TALKS TO BUSINESS WOMEN

The meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday evening was very well attended. The club members and several guests who were present were very much interested in the talk given by Dr. C. C. Beale, County Health Officer, on "What Everyone Should Know About Cancer" and he spoke particularly on the prominent part women have taken in research work to help aid the control of this disease. This talk was part of the Health Program in charge of Miss Marie Robertson, which is sponsored by all clubs in the Federation in an effort to educate Business Women in the fundamentals of good health.

A farewell toast and remembrance from the club were presented by Dr. Isa B. Carr by Miss Charlotte McEwing in a very pleasing manner. Dr. Carr, who has been a faithful member of the club for the past eight years, is moving back to her old home in Kenton, O., because of the illness of her father.

PATHE COMEDY-FOX NEWS

SATURDAY-TIM MCCOY in "THE ONE WAY TRAIL"

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — An exciting rumor going the rounds today is that Buster Keaton will play the tragic role of Kringelein in "Grand Hotel."

The cast for M. G. M.'s talkie version of the Vicki Baum novel already bulges with celebrities. Greta Garbo will play the dancer, Wallace Beery the factory owner, and Joan Crawford his secretary. Buster's role, if he gets it, will be the pathetic factory worker, whom doctors give but two weeks to live and who comes to the city to spend his last days in a round of gayety. The part will be one of the plums of the production. Edmund Goulding is strong for Buster, and it is more than likely that the sad-faced comic will realize an ambition dear to all of his kind—a chance to play a tragic role.

ROGERS ON THE MOVIES.

Will Rogers was the sensation of the dinner given by the film people to Banker A. H. Giannini.

Rising to follow Jack Warner, who had proved no mean wit himself, Will led off: "I always knew these producers were funny if they would only be natural."

And, a nifty on Wall St.: "The bankers," said Will, "have had a great influence on the film business. When Wall St. came in, the audiences went out."

MORE GOSSIP.

Another cycle of chain letters has risen up like a grasshopper plague. Maurice Chevalier has received 400 in the last ten days. Claudette Colbert's reunion with Norman Foster has been marred by her illness. She has been sick for almost a week now. Peter Diego is recovered from a seven-weeks' siege in the hospital.

Hollywood is much concerned about Robert Williams. Scheduled to start a picture with Constance Bennett, he was stricken with appendicitis, delaying an operation too long, he now is in a serious condition. This actor is respected out here for his fine performances in "Rebound" and other recent films.

Lowell Sherman will direct Edna May Oliver in "Ladies of the Jury." Contrary to his custom, he will not have a part. Ramon Novarro's M. G. M. contract still is unsigned. He is going to New York to make some records and, whatever happens in the contract matter, will not make another picture before March. Joan Bennett's doctor is allowing her to dance and swim on her ocean trip to New York.

NO FAKING HERE.

The reason Jimmy Durante can't be contracted to Hollywood is a bad cold contracted on his fishing trip. As Harry Brand remarks: "When Jimmy has a cold in his nose, he's a sick man."

IN THE NEWS.

Glorified into a film contract by Florenz Ziegfeld, Virginia Bruce will have a part with John and Lionel Barrymore in "Arsene Lupin." Virginia originally was a Hollywood girl, but got little notice until Broadway's most famous picker carried her East to go into his follies.

HE DID HIS PART TOO WELL.

Director Josef von Sternberg wanted an aged Chinese extra to hurl a curse upon a locomotive for a scene in "Shanghai Express." After Tom Gubbins, the interpreter, had explained the matter, the scene was taken.

The old Chinaman came through with a flood of words. As Von Sternberg was about to okay the scene, Gubbins whispered in his ear. "He said what?" cried Joe. "Kill that scene. We'll do it over again. And tell Wang he's not playing Captain Flagg!"
